

Where Woman Reigns Society and Clubs

She took two weeks to choose her winter hat. She ran here and there and tried on this and that. The matter of her nose and ungarter. Was studied long, as weighty things should be. And when it came to gowns, she pondered o'er. Each tuck and ruffle, bias blouse and gown. Debated well the style of skirt and sleeve. But—she picked a husband in one moon-lit eve.

There seems to be an opinion of long standing that there is no such thing as masculine pulchritude, that is, in the human animal, but no one who viewed the bevy of real beauties who served at a New Year's day reception would believe such a theory for a moment. From the blushing beau who poured coffee to the near-debutante who deftly passed the sandwiches, there was no one in the realm feminine to hold a candle to them. There was a short siege of coaching prior to the occasion, when one of the merry bachelors selected asked, "How does a fellow know how to pour coffee? How much do you dare to put in without spilling it?" "Oh," was the reply of the wily one, "the winner is the one who can put the least in and make it pass muster as a cupful."

The rage for all things which may be called classes still continues despite the strenuousness of the society life. There is not a morning without its study class of some kind, nor an afternoon that has not something in the way of a cooking class or a culture club. Since the completion of the new gymnasium, every day sees its little coterie of choice friends, clad in the tiniest of bathing suits, getting real instruction in the art and the science of swimming. The classes vary from one to ten, some of the ultra particular having a whole tank to themselves. A new dancing class has been added to the already excellent ones, and at this the nimble foot will be trained to become still more nimble, and fancy and all other dancing will be developed in all its fullness by special instructors. The embryonic cooks in the cooking classes (for brides-elect), are said to be so enthusiastic that they will stand "hard labor" for five hours making goodies. Before Lent some of these things will have to be sacrificed, and doubtless the most arduous of them will be allowed to wane.

It seems that the new dancing class has taken literally the exceedingly popular ballad, which says:

No longer does the lissome miss
Cavort in catchy waltz.
The twopenny and the ragtime blues
She found, was false.
The schottische and the polka's swing
She's laid them all away.
Aesthetic dancing is the thing
That holds the floor today.

And, behold, the newly organized dancing class will spend its time in the study of the truly beautiful with the foreknowledge so well demonstrated and so fascinatingly told that

Every little movement has a meaning all its own.
No more is any one to be left in doubt, for from eyelids to tips of the toe tips, a systematic drill will be given to those constituting the class. It will beat the "culture classes" at so much per pull all out.

The present week, while much less filled with social activities planned beforehand, will be a busy one for the socially inclined. The one large event of the week will be the reception and dance to be given on Wednesday evening at the Ogden by Governor and Mrs. William Spry. The affair is planned in compliment to the state officials and to the members of the state legislature, and the guests will include the officers from the post and the ladies, as well as the members of the governor's staff. Preceding the affair a number of dinners will be given. The affair will be the last big event till the next assembly, which will be one week later at the same place.

The regular golfers who have been deprived of their game locally since the real winter set in, are planning to fill a part of the winter with some fine games, and are going to the popular winter golf course at Riverside for a while. Whether they will go in a party or singly has not been determined, but R. E. Gemmell, George P. Holman, F. E. McGurkin, Robert Harness, Jack Taylor and others have planned to go, and George Heintz, E. B. Wickes and Russel Tracy are already there enjoying the links.

C. Clyde Squires is to the front once more with a drawing in this week's Life, which again makes his Salt Lake friends proud of him. It is just a bit of sentiment called "Better Than Riches," but it is full of meaning for those who realize that "The gold is but the guinea's stamp."

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Jennings gave a beautifully appointed dinner last Monday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. James Hogle at their home on Second avenue. The decorations were of bride's roses in compliment to the bride, and the other guests were Mr. and Mrs. George M. Bacon, Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer B. Jones, Judge M. L. Ritchie and Mrs. Kenneth C. Kerr.

Miss Gladys McConaughy entertained the Saturday Night Bridge club at her home last evening, the affair being in compliment to Miss Frances Cowan, who leaves today to re-enter Vassar. The other guests and members of the club were the Misses Mary and Cary Marshall, Virginia Beatty, Edith Goddard, Aline McMillan, Alex Thomas, Athol Rawlins, Leland Swanner, Dean Bratton, Lieutenant E. B. Garey, Mr. Scott and Mr. Janney.

Mrs. Elmer B. Jones was the hostess yesterday at a beautiful luncheon at her home given in compliment to the members of the finance and the building committees of the Ladies' Literary club. The decorations were all in pink and white and the place cards were dainty bits of architectural designs done in water color by Mrs. W. F. Adams. The guests numbered fourteen.

Miss Edith Shearman entertained a party of friends on Friday evening at a Twelfth Night party, when following a few games of bridge the Christmas greens were burned and a supper served.

Mrs. A. H. Boxrud entertained nearly thirty young people last evening at her home, the guests being the boys and girls of her Sunday school class. Games were played and a supper served and a pleasant evening spent. Mrs. Boxrud was assisted by her daughter, Miss Helen Boxrud.

Mrs. J. M. Callow entertained about a score of the younger girls, the junior class of Rowland hall, Saturday afternoon at a bridge tea for her daughter, Miss Bessie Callow. The home was decorated with violets and some of the closer friends of Miss Bessie assisted in entertaining.

WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS.

A simple, quiet wedding of Saturday was that of Mrs. Carrie Atkins Higgins, daughter of Mrs. T. H. Atkins, and James W. Wade, which took place at St. Paul's church at noon, Bishop F. S. Spaulding officiating. Only the immediate families were present. Mr. and Mrs. Wade left immediately for Los Angeles and will be at home after February 1 at 335 West Third North street.

One interesting matrimonial event of the week will be the marriage of Miss Estelle Clinton and Raymond H. Moore of Boise, which will take place at 9 o'clock on Thursday morning at the Clinton home. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Elmer T. Gosman and attending the bride will be her sister, Mrs. Will Ellerbeck. Her brother, Lynn Clinton, will be the best man, and little Irene Clinton and Rosella Ellerbeck will be ribbon bearers, while little Katherine Ellerbeck and Katherine Moore will be flower girls. The young people will leave for the northwest and later will make their home in Boise.

The marriage of Miss Mayme Lindsay and C. O. Dunshee will take place on Wednesday at 5 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dunshee in Westminster Heights. The wedding will be attended only by the relatives and immediately after the bride and groom will leave for California on a wedding trip.

The date set for the marriage of Miss Adele Holley and Lieutenant J. M. Wainwright is Saturday, February 18, and the wedding will take place at Fort Douglas, the first event of the kind since the Lane-Saunders marriage there in 1904.

A wedding set for Wednesday which is of interest to a number of Salt Lake friends is that of Miss Cora Brown, sister of Mrs. George Dorn of this city, and Claud William Poole of Mercur, which will take place in Fremont, Neb. A number of Salt Lake friends have gone on for the event.

Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Romney announce the engagement of their daughter, Gertrude, to Shirley Y. Clawson, the marriage to take place in the Salt Lake temple February 8.
